

CREDIT CARD BENEFIT TRACKER

Four Streamlit-friendly mobile dashboard aesthetics. Each option preserves the current product logic and focuses on CSS-level visual polish.

No workflow changeHome, Cards, Categories, Archived, expanders, and actions stay in the same places.

Mobile firstDesigned around quick phone checks, not a desktop marketing page.

Finance clarityAmount, due date, status, and card name are visually prioritized.

Streamlit realisticUses surfaces, tokens, borders, badges, and spacing that can map into the current CSS.

PREPARED FOR CHOOSING A FINAL UI DIRECTION

OPTION A

Executive Ledger

Clean private-banking dashboard. Best if you want the tracker to feel serious, quiet, and durable. This is the safest direct evolution of the current implementation.

Palette

TypographyAptos / Segoe, high-weight labels

TextureSubtle grid, low shadow, white cards

Best for: daily use, scan speed, low maintenance.

Tradeoff: less dramatic; looks like a premium utility, not a flashy app.

Implementation effort: low to medium.

OPTION B

Premium Card Desk

Card-wallet inspired, darker and richer. Best if you want the app to feel closer to credit card products and premium travel cards.

Palette

TypographyStrong compact sans, metallic accents

TextureDark glass, card-like shine, gold labels

Best for: strong personality and card-centric visual identity.

Tradeoff: darker UI can feel heavier for frequent quick checks.

Implementation effort: medium.

OPTION C

Travel Command

Airline-board and itinerary inspired. Best if most benefits are travel, hotel, airline, rideshare, and annual-fee reminders.

Palette
TypographyDense operational dashboard labels
TextureRoute-map energy, blue panels, active states

Best for: benefit tracking that feels like a travel operations board.
Tradeoff: less neutral for non-travel categories like grocery or dining.
Implementation effort: medium.

OPTION D

Quiet Checklist

Minimal, paper-like, and task oriented. Best if you want the fastest daily scan and the least visual weight.

Palette
TypographySystem sans, sharp hierarchy, no flash
TexturePaper surfaces, thin rules, low contrast

Best for: a private tool that behaves like a refined to-do list.
Tradeoff: intentionally understated; less premium-card personality.
Implementation effort: low.

Benefits to use

Short list. Clear next action.
